

Sinclair
Broadcasting's
decision to force
their stations to air an anti-Kerry
documentary days
before the election
is a clear example
of the dangers of media consolidation
and a disrespect to our common sense
civic culture.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies
control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line
and less of what we need for the health
of our democracy.
Instead of something
produced at "News Central" far away,
it's more important
that we see real people from our own communities and more
substantive news
about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions
show why we need to strengthen media
ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license
renewal process
needs to involve
more than a returned postcard. As a political scientist,
I find Sinclair's
decisions to censor
a roll call of dead soldiers while amplify only one side of a hotly
contested election
campaign dangerous
to the health of our democracy. I urge you to take deligence in the license renewal
process.

Thank you.
